Instagram covers with Claude

The exact prompt I gave Claude to make the covers of my first 20 reels match, the style rules that make a grid look like one brand, and the review page where I just tap approve or leave a note.

BEFORE

AFTER, MADE WITH CLAUDE

Same nine reels, same order. The only thing that changed is the cover.

Step 1

The prompt

Open Claude (the desktop app, with Claude in Chrome connected and your Instagram signed in) and paste this. Change the style description in step 2 to your own best cover.

```
Look through my Instagram profile and make the covers of my first 20 reels consistent, so my grid looks like one brand when someone lands on my page.

1. Open my profile in Claude in Chrome and save the current cover of each of the first 20 reels, in profile order.
2. Use this cover as the style reference: a full bleed photo of me, a small white lead-in line, one huge white keyword, an italic accent word overlapping it, and a small white pill with a call to action. Keep everything inside the 4:5 profile grid crop.
3. For each reel, write the three text parts from what the video is actually about: a short lead-in, one keyword in capitals, and one accent word. Keep the keyword to one word that fits the width.
4. Use a real still from the video where I look calm and my whole head is in frame. If no still works, generate one in Higgsfield from my character sheet, never a random face.
5. Drop anything that doesn't match the style, like old lines of text, emojis or different fonts.
6. Build me a review page with all 20 covers in profile order, a toggle that shows the profile grid crop, and Approve or Needs changes on each one, with a notes box that saves as I type.
7. Send me the first 5 to approve before you make the rest. When I leave a note, redo that cover, mark it as a new version and show my last note on it.
8. When all 20 are approved, export them at 1080 x 1920, named in profile order, ready to upload.
```

WHAT YOU NEED

- ☐ Claude Pro ($20/month)
- ☐ Claude desktop app
- ☐ Claude in Chrome, signed in to Instagram

OPTIONAL

- ☐ Higgsfield for stills when a video has no good frame: higgsfield.ai?fpr=wiktoria88
- ☐ A character sheet of yourself, so every generated still looks like you

Why "first 5" matters: the first round is where the style gets decided. Fixing 5 covers is quick; fixing 20 that all share the same mistake is not.

Step 2

The style rules

A grid looks consistent when every cover follows the same five rules. This is the NYC cover from my set, with the 4:5 profile crop marked.

1. Lead-in: one short white line that sets up the keyword. "143 years of", "How I got Claude to do my".
2. Keyword: ONE word in heavy capitals, as wide as the cover allows. If it doesn't fit, pick a shorter word.
3. Accent: an italic serif word overlapping the keyword, in one soft colour. It adds the twist: "history", "edits", "part two".
4. Pill: a small white call to action that matches the comment keyword or the payoff: "MY PROMPTS →".
5. 4:5 crop: the profile grid cuts the top and bottom. Keep your face and all the text inside the dashed box.

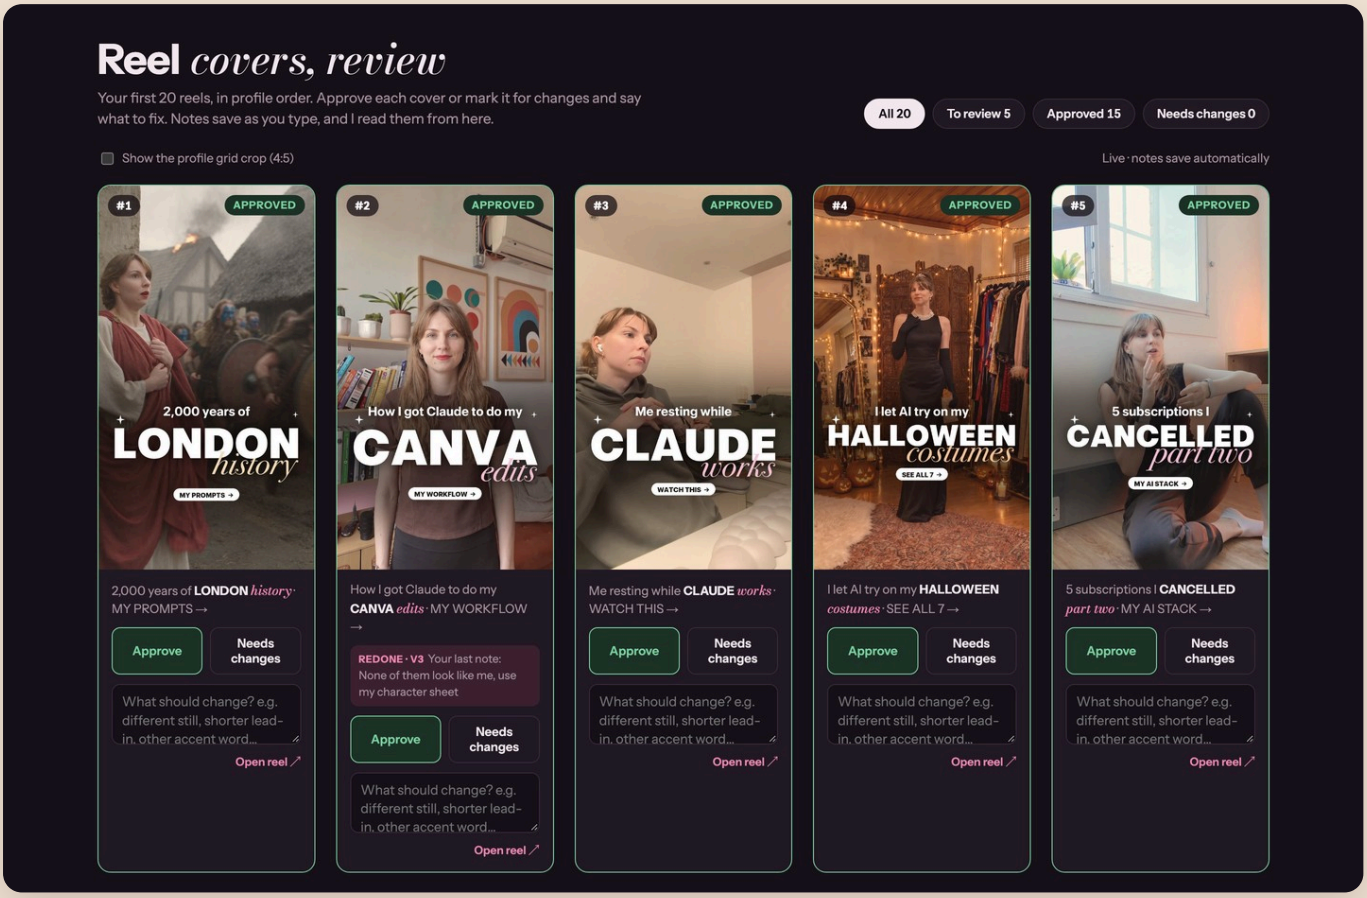

AND FOR THE PHOTO

- A real still of you, calm, mouth closed, whole head in frame. Never a frame where you're mid-word.
- One shared grade on every cover (mine is warm and slightly hazy) so they read as a set.
- No old text, stickers, emojis or second fonts.

Step 3

Review, don't redesign

Claude builds you a page like this. You tap Approve or Needs changes and type what's wrong. Claude reads the notes, redoes those covers and shows your last note on each one, so you can check it fixed the right thing.

PROMPTS FOR THE REVIEW ROUNDS

After you leave notes:

```
I've left notes on the review page. Read them, redo every cover marked Needs changes, mark each one as a new version and keep my last note on the card.
```

When everything is approved:

```
All covers are approved. Export them at 1080 x 1920 named in profile order, and make me a grid preview with the 4:5 crop so I can check the profile before I upload.
```

So you never explain the style again:

```
Save these cover rules to a file called cover-style.md and use them for every new reel cover from now on.
```
